

Contact: Monica Villafañe
Viva Technology Director
HENAAC
Phone: 323.262.0997
FAX: 323.262.0946
www.henaac.org

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

The Motorola Foundation and HENAAC host another Viva Technology Day

Dr. Michael Krop High School students receive Viva Technology Program

(Miami, Florida) March 8, 2006– In its ongoing partnership with Krop High School, the

As part of its ongoing dedication to community and education, the Motorola Foundation has partnered with HENAAC to bring Viva Technology to four different schools in Florida and Chicago.

About Viva Technology

Since its debut in 2001, the Viva Technology Program has been conducted at over 45 sites across the nation, including locations in Northern and Southern California, Nevada, Texas, Chicago, Louisiana, Georgia, Ohio, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Florida, with more to be scheduled this year. www.henaac.org.

About the Motorola Foundation

The Motorola Foundation was established in 1953 primarily to support leading universities in the United States. Today, the Motorola Foundation provides funding to higher education as well as a multitude of primary and secondary education programs assisting individuals to reach their greatest potential and to become lifelong learners.

One of the Foundations goals is to augment the level of education levels for youth especially in the communities where Motorola has a major operating presence. The Foundation is a global entity and endeavors to support diversity efforts in all of its activities.

www.motorola.com/content.